User permissions

In the InsightStore user list, to the right of a user's name is a field showing their current user type, either Administrator or Researcher.

Administrators can perform all system tasks, including managing account settings, creating new questions (if permitted by your account), and inviting others to join the account.

Researchers cannot create or deploy questions, manage account settings, or invite others to join the account. They can, however, create dashboards, segments, and reports and share them with others.

Changing users' permissions

To change a user's permissions, click the downward caret to the right of the user type. Then, select the new user type, and the permissions will be updated.
